

Senior Project Manager, IS&T

The Senior Project Manager (IS&T) is primarily responsible for managing the successful delivery and implementation of several data and digital projects from business case through to project close. In general, the projects will have a high data and digital component, requiring technical management expertise and infrastructure transition experience. The Senior Project Manager will lead the implementation of changes introduced through technology to the business and manage the successful transition to the desired state.

The specific projects that the Senior Project Manager will lead are technologically significant to GNS and include the Windows 11 upgrade, network redesign and transition, cloud migration, and identity and access management implementation.
